

Personality Traits That Predict Behaviour - Pilot Personality Training Course (PPTC)

The aim of a Psychometrics Profiles of Pilot Personality Training Course (PPTC) is to provide training to competence for those who are active in selection of pilots whether type rate or initial pilot selection and want to be prepared to comply with the upcoming EASA requirements.

At the end of the course trainees will demonstrate their ability using profiles in a practical way to move beyond “checking the box” and into utilising this essential tool in both selection and aviation training, updated with the latest recommendations and the European Union Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) regulation that requires operators to undertake psychological assessments of aircrew during recruitment to the required standard with additional industry best practice.

Duration of course

The course requires two consecutive days of 7 hours training per day.
